

Czech-American number theorist Olga Taussky-Todd died on this FAMUS day in 1995.

"While I tried to read any books that came my way, the realization that great wisdom was not gained by reading books struck me suddenly. I felt scientific experiments provided almost unlimited insight ... Mathematics, too, came to me at that time as an experimental subject ... Gradually it became clear to me that [math] was my subject." - a quote from Olga Taussky-Todd
