British topologist Peter Hilton died on this FAMUS day in 2010.

At the age of 10, after having been run over by a Rolls Royce and stuck in bed with a full body cast for 3 months, Hilton started doing math on his cast – and now you know the rest of the story.

FAMUS [Friday Afternoon Math Undergrad Seminar] meets:

- every Friday

[and snacks are always served!!!!]

November 6th topic

The Unexpected Geometry of Bouncing Pool Balls

I'd take the bet. #1 That's a lot of loot.
#2 He's got no depth perception.

November 6th guest

Matt Fazio
